About MP Consulting

MP Consulting is Minar Pimple's practice working with social sector organisations on strategy, leadership development and organisational effectiveness. It draws on four decades of experience, from founding and leading YUVA for twenty years to merging seven Oxfams into Oxfam India and restructuring Amnesty International's global operations.

The practice began in 2019 with work for the Asia office of a large global philanthropy, and was relaunched in a more consistent form in September 2024. By design it takes on only a few assignments at a time.

Its starting point is that leadership in 2026 must respond to a rapidly changing, uncertain external world, one that affects the social sector as much as business. Minar keeps upgrading his own skills, including the use of AI in coaching and organisational design.

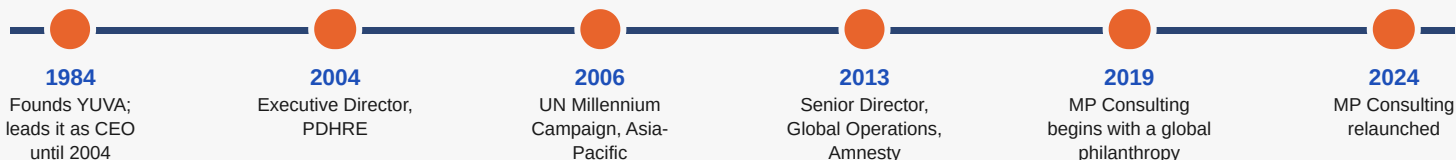

How the practice works

Networked, not staffed. Instead of expanding headcount, Minar convenes specialists from his network, such as CSR, compensation or global HR experts, based on each organisation's needs, and manages them as principal consultant.

Bespoke, not packaged. No standard deck repeated from client to client. Each engagement is designed around the organisation, starting from a holistic diagnostic.

Values first. Partners are brought in only after an in-person conversation confirms they share his commitment to empowering community leaders, and to equipping institutions with their own tools rather than having to return to him.

Path to the Practice

Core Services

Executive Coaching

Coaching for senior leaders in the not-for-profit sector, where coaching is far less established than in business. The work often begins by explaining what coaching is.

Team Leadership

Senior leaders need teams that back them up. Facilitated team leadership workshops build the leadership around the leader.

OD3: Diagnostics, Design and Development

Closing the gap between strategy, people, structures and systems on one side and the programmatic mission on the other, so the whole organisation is aligned.

Board and Governance

Moving boards from compliance boards to performance boards to mission-driven boards, including skill surveys that match board competencies to strategy.

Programme and Policy Linkage

Locating grassroots work within the SDGs and national development plans, and using it to influence policy.

Values-Aligned People Systems

Setting a philosophy for compensation and HR that fits an organisation's values, with specialists designing the detail.
